Florida Frost Damage Is High Loss Assessed At About 20 Per Cent

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—December frost damage to Florida fruit was assessed as high as 20 per cent, but growers consoled themselves today with a growing prospect of premier prices for oranges and grapefruit that escaped harm.

Average prices already were up for both raw and processed citrus, although damaged fruit brought little more than production cost. Growers with high quality fruit held onto it in apparent anticipation of a handsome return when the supply picture clears.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated Friday that 22 million boxes of Florida oranges were lost in the record December freeze. It wrote off four million boxes of grapefruit and 1½ million boxes of tangerines. In its last previous estimate of Florida citrus, the USDA looked for a record 102-million box orange crop, 36 million boxes of grapefruit and 4½ million boxes of tangerines.

Florida Citrus Mutual, a big grower cooperative, said in pointing up the expectation of higher prices to growers for remaining fruit, said the U.S. supply of or-

Nation Launches 2 Big Missiles

U.S. Scientists Plan 2 Satellite 'Shoots'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The nation's testers of space vehicles, having launched two 5,000-mile missiles within four hours, turned their attention today to efforts to put two baby moons into the sky.

The launchings Friday of an Atlas ballistic missile and a Navaho ramjet vehicle both were successful. The Navaho took off ballistically under the power of two liquid propellant rockets considerably longer than the missile itself. The rocket boosters dropped off into the ocean after about 40 miles of flight. After the Navaho attained supersonic speed its ramjet engine was able to take over.

Both missiles were believed to have flown several hundred miles, far short of their designed range.

One of the satellites, designed as a civilian scientific project under the Navy's management, will be an aluminum sphere only 6.4 inches in diameter and weighing about 3½ pounds. It will be launched by the three-stage, 72-foot-long Vanguard rocket.

The other will be a metal cylinder 80 inches long and six inches

Lisbon Girl Critical After Heart Surgery

LISBON — Brenda Ikert, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ikert of 225 W. Maple St., is in critical condition today at St. Vincent Hospital in Cleveland, where she underwent a second heart operation Friday.

Doctors said the first 72 hours following the operation would be crucial for the child.

Brenda was in surgery five hours, from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m. Surgeons found an infected spot on her heart and another defect.

Thirteen blood donors from Lisbon went to Cleveland yesterday to give blood during the operation. A radio appeal in Cleveland brought in 10 "walk-in" donors.

Born with a serious heart defect which would have worsened and become fatal if uncorrected, Brenda first underwent surgery on Nov. 13.

The operation was successful, but she developed a high fever two weeks afterward, indicating complications.

Surgeons performed an exploratory operation on the child Wednesday and discovered another weak spot on her heart. They immediately scheduled yesterday's operation.

Atomic Energy Put To Peacetime Use

Shippingport, Pa., Plant Provides Electricity For Pittsburgh

By BYRON EELIS

Brush-Moore Special Writer

Atomic energy which blasted and burned Hiroshima 12 years ago in war, today is supplying electricity for homes, commerce and industry in the Greater Pittsburgh area.

Doing the job is the world's first full-scale peacetime atomic power plant at Shippingport, Pa., a tiny community of 600, nine miles east of East Liverpool.

But even as the first atomic generated power surged into the Duquesne Light Co.'s transmission lines on Dec. 18, scientists were planning improved nuclear cores to step up the plant's power production and new types that may outmode the Shippingport plant, constructed jointly by Duquesne and the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC).

However, the 110-million-dollar project is unique because Shippingport is the first plant in the United States to use nuclear energy for the production of large quantities of commercial electricity and the first in the world to be operated by a private utility and devoted exclusively to commercial power.

TECHNICAL language baffling to the layman surrounds the plant's operation—terms such as criticality, reactivity, uranium blanket assemblies and seed assemblies.

But G. M. Oldham, a graying, 30-year veteran with Duquesne who is station superintendent, cuts through the language quickly to explain the operation simply: "All we did was build a new furnace."

NERVE CENTER for the world's first full-scale atomic-powered electric generating station at Shippingport, Pa., is this elaborate control room. Three operators at this control panel issue "instructions" to the nuclear reactor which boils water into steam to turn the generating turbines.

And a construction worker surveying the project sprawled on a 100-acre site summed it up even more succinctly: "All this 'boil water'!"

Actually, that's the easiest way to explain the operation—it simply uses the heat of atomic energy, instead of coal, to boil water and transform it into steam to turn the generators which produce electricity.

At present, Ohio Valley coal is cheaper than the Uranium 235 which is used for the Shippingport plant heat, and coal will provide most of Ohio's power for some years to come. But the U-235 may become cheaper as time goes on, and it already is more economical than coal in many of the world's out-of-the-way places where transportation of coal is done only at prohibitive cost.

Five Venezuelan Priests Freed

Demonstrators Ask 'End to Dictatorship'

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Demonstrators in downtown Caracas Friday night demanded "an end to the dictatorship" as President Marcos Perez Jimenez sought to mollify the Vatican by freeing five jailed priests.

Eisenhower's reply has been coordinated with those going from the government chiefs of Britain, France and other allied nations in response to a series of notes Bulganin sent free world leaders in December. It is understood the replies also will cover the substance of new Bulganin messages to NATO leaders and heads of many other governments this week.

Secretary of State Dulles gave the guidelines of U.S. policy at a news conference Friday. He said no summit meeting should be held as Bulganin proposed Thursday—within two or three months. But Dulles left open the possibility of some future top level session provided there is adequate preparation for it and a reasonable assurance that it will accomplish some desirable result."

Dulles denounced Bulganin's Thursday message as a propaganda move designed to steal world attention from Eisenhower's State of the Union message that same day. He accused the Soviets of trying to cover up bad policies or such matters as disarmament with clever propaganda.

Dulles said the Soviet proposal for an agreement to ban the use of nuclear weapons would not work and that the Kremlin's proposal to call off tests of such weapons would not advance disarmament "one inch."

Nations that have relied for their existence on Soviet promises have almost uniformly lost it," Dulles said. "And, until there is a better record than that, I don't believe that the safety, perhaps the very existence of the United States, ought to be put at the hazard of a Soviet promise."

On a number of other foreign policy subjects, Dulles made these major points:

1. The United States has no intention of changing its basic proposals on disarmament as agreed on between the NATO allies and presented to Russia in meetings at London last year—unless there is some indication from Moscow that changes would be profitable. To change without such reason, Dulles said, would be "futile and indeed reckless."

2. A Soviet-Polish proposal for creating a zone in Central Europe which would be free of nuclear weapons and missiles is under study in the NATO Council at Paris. Embracing Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, such a zone would probably mean "total neutralization of the area," Dulles said, and might make it imprudent in the opinion of some allies to maintain any forces there since they would not have modern weapons. This implied the West would turn down the proposal, though Dulles did not specifically say so.

May Send Message Over Weekend Ike Expected to Reject Red Bid For Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is expected to send Soviet Premier Bulganin a message this weekend holding open the door to an eventual summit conference, but rejecting Bulganin's bid for such a session within three months.

Air Force Pilot Leaves Albania

Says He Voluntarily Landed Jet Trainer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—U.S. Air Force Maj. Howard Curran said today that he voluntarily landed his T33 jet trainer in Communist Albania after being blown off course with his radio communications broken.

Curran arrived from Albania by a Yugoslav commercial airliner leaving behind his plane which had been reported forced down by Red fighters.

Curran said that when he landed in Albania he did not know that he was over that Communist territory but had to land on the first field he saw, having fuel for only another 10 minutes' flight.

He was "treated very fairly" during his 19 days' stay in Albania, Curran said.

He explained that he was unable to fly out of Albania in his T jet trainer plane because upon landing on Dec. 23 his left main landing gear tire burst. Curran said he could have flown out if he had a new tire.

Curran said the Albanians told him that they would give him a replacement tire but later they claimed that they did not have one.

Curran's plane disappeared Dec. 23 on a training flight from Chateauroux, France, to Southern Italy. A Tirana radio broadcast later disclosed that Soviet-built jet fighters had forced him down in Albania.

General Tells Of Duplication By New Agency

Schriever's Criticism Called 'Unfortunate' By Senator Flanders

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) said today he considers it unfortunate an Air Force general has challenged President Eisenhower's program setting up a unified space agency in the Pentagon.

It was disclosed Friday night that Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever had told the Senate Preparedness subcommittee he thought the new agency now being organized would duplicate already existing Air Force capabilities. He is the Air Force missiles chief.

Schriever's testimony was given behind closed doors on Thursday, the Day Eisenhower informed Congress in his State of the Union message that "all the antimissile and satellite technology undertaken within the Department of Defense" would be concentrated in the new Advanced Research Projects Agency.

The testimony of Schriever, who also voiced other criticisms of missile and satellite policies, was released Friday night by the Air Force in a departure from normal procedure. Generally in such cases, the Pentagon permits the congressional committee to release testimony.

In an interview, Flanders said: "It seems the President showed leadership in straightening out the armed forces, and if his first move is publicly condemned by one of the services I think that is unfortunate."

Other senators, however, said Schriever was just being frank and airing a serious disagreement.

Decision Criticized

Schriever criticized the defense department decision to use both the Army Jupiter and the Air Force Thor, 1,500-mile range inter-

Marine, 35, Gets 4 Years At Hard Labor

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A general court-martial Friday sentenced a decorated Marine Corps veteran of World War II and Korea to four years at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge.

S. Sgt. Frank J. Humphrey, 35, son of Mrs. Nell Humphrey of Cherokee, Iowa, was convicted of 22 counts of borrowing money from recruits at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in violation of regulations.

The sentence by the six-man court also included a forfeiture of pay allowances, totaling $339.10 a month, and reduction in rank to private. The Maximum prison term could have been 44 years.

Humphrey, who lived here with his wife and three children, is held in the depot brig pending review of the court's action by higher authorities.

Humphrey is the first of seven depot drill instructors scheduled to be brought to general court-martial trial on charges of borrowing or accepting money from recruits.

Bible Words for Today

LUKE 10:27—"And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyself." (King James)

The secret of life is to place God first. This is not easy in any generation, particularly our own. There is the temptation to place material success, popularity, security, family, friends, prestige—these and many more temptations present themselves as the first claim for our attention and devotion. The result of the wrong choice is that we can be wealthy, but frustrated; healthy, but unhappy; secure, but bored.

Placing God first means that we have the right center for our lives. We have both purpose and direction. Since we seek to be used by God we are not primarily interested in using other personalities to gain our own ends. It is not necessary to try to escape from life, because we have found the answer.

Reading the Bible, the study of the life of Christ, taking time for our own prayer and devotion—all these are ways in which we can learn how to place God first. With God first, we are ready to love our neighbor as ourselves. Courageously we can seek to overcome prejudice, injustice, war, crime, because God can use us to accomplish his purpose.

Confident Living

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

How to Understand Other People

One day last summer on board ship coming back from Japan, my family, my son John was having a party with some other young people in the ship's lounge when he heard a man at the bar talking in a loud voice to the bartender—about me.

"I don't care," he said (and I have noted this down), "If Norman Vincent Peale is on this ship, I'll drink as much whiskey as I want to, and Norman Vincent Peale can go to—" (you know where).

My son told me he was embarrassed by the incident and had left the lounge quietly, and now wanted to know whether he had done the right thing. I told him he had.

"That man is sure down on you, Dad," John said, "and I wonder why."

"I have no idea," I replied "but here is a study in human nature. So let's watch it and see what we see."

DURING LUNCH the next day, a very gracious and pleasant man came over to our table and introduced himself. He invited us to a party in his cabin before dinner that night. I'm not an enthusiast about shipboard parties, but the invitation was a polite one and I liked the man; so I accepted.

As soon as he left the table John turned to me in excitement and said, "That's the guy who was talking about you!"

Well, Mrs. Peale and I decided to go to the party anyway and we did. Our host couldn't have been more polite and, although there was an ample supply of other beverages, joined me in drinking a soft drink as long as I stayed.

The next day I met him on deck and we walked around a bit. I found him good company and became convinced that John must have been mistaken about him. But John insisted he was right.

THEN, THE VERY NEXT DAY, he walked with me again and we came to a secluded spot. He turned rather angrily and said: "I want to ask you a question. Why has God got it in for me? Why did He do what He did to me?"

When I asked what this was he replied: "I had a wife. We were married 27 years. I loved her. She was everything to me, and my whole life was built around her. Then God gave her cancer and took her away from me. Now I'm drinking a lot. I don't like it, but why did He do that to me?"

Then I understood why he had cursed me out. You see, if he had cursed God out, the bartender wouldn't have stood for it. No one else would either. So he had to use some kind of symbol as a substitute for expressing his resentment of God. And there I was on the same ship, a minister, connected with the church, and the church connected with God. What easier symbol upon which to unload his hate! There was nothing personal about it. He had been

Examples That Point the Way

In further support of the observation in this column that more and more individuals are placing their trust in God during these days of uncertainty on the economic, social and political fronts of life, the following examples have come recently through the mails and from the pages of newspapers and magazines:

THE PRESIDENT or a large manufacturing firm addressed a year-end letter to hundreds of business friends and customers in which he called upon them to acknowledge God's blessings on us as a people and as a nation. He pointed out that only through taking God into our lives as a partner can we hope to achieve a secure and satisfying existence on earth.

AN ADVERTISEMENT in the financial section of a newspaper urged its readers to "demonstrate the Ten Commandments in the market place," and went on to list:

First Christian

There are classes for the entire family at the 9:30 a.m. Bible school Sunday in the First Christian Church.

"What Does A Man Need?" will be the theme of Rev. Harold Deitch's talk at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday.

Chi Rhos will meet Sunday at 5:30 p.m. The Christian Youth Fellowship for high school and older young people gathers at 5:45 p.m. The youth choir will sing at the evening service at 7. The pastor's topic is "Years of Apprenticeship." The congregational meeting scheduled for Sunday evening has been postponed to Jan. 26 at 7 p.m.

There will be a special meeting of the building committee after the evening worship service.

The official board plans a special meeting Jan. 19 after the morning worship.

The adult choir will practice Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and the youth choir, Friday at 3:45 p.m.

Emmanuel Lutheran

An adult Bible class is scheduled for 9 a.m. Sunday at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

A Sunday School will convene at 9 a.m. with Lee Schaefer as superintendent.

Rev. R. D. Freseman will speak on the subject, "Preparation for Witnessing" at the 10:15 a.m. worship hour.

Darrell Adams and Lou Slaby will be in charge of the Luther League meeting Sunday evening at 6:30.

The annual meeting is planned for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"Thou shalt worship no other god before Me—" not worldly things or personal possessions or material wants and desires.

"Thou shalt not bear false witness."

"Thou shalt not steal."

"Thou shalt not covet anything that is thy neighbor's."

"Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain."

AN ECONOMIST pointed out in a news letter that the difficulties of these times are not so unusual in the life of the world. He cited examples of the troubles of 20, 100, 200, 600, 1600, and 1900 years ago. He referred to Paul of Tarsus who was beaten, stoned, shipwrecked, robbed, imprisoned, but who "fought a good fight, finished the course, kept the faith."

THE VICE PRESIDENT of one of the country's largest insurance companies wrote an article for a business magazine on the subject, "Faith in a Creative Society." One major point in the article:

To meet today's problems, we must exercise the creative power that comes from God, no matter how insignificant our life and living. We must call on that power to endure setbacks and disappointments and to expand our efforts. To work in a creative way is to fulfill God's will, for He is the master Creator.

These are present-day expressions of faith and trust from men of business and industry. They do not ask for contracts and orders, busier offices and factories of freedom from the problems and fears of the day. Rather, they look to God's will and wisdom to "call the turn" on their fate and future.

For your family you are satisfied only with the finest . . . That's another reason you should bring them to study God's word and hear His Gospel every Lord's day.

Guarding Your Health

By DR. EDWIN P. JORDAN

Conditions Aggravate Ulcers

Certainly one of the most common disorders among our adult population today is what is commonly known as ulcer of the stomach.

Actually ulcers can occur either in the stomach proper or in that portion of the intestines lying just below the stomach known as the duodenum.

Technically, ulcer in the stomach proper is known as gastric ulcer, and the other as duodenal ulcer. However, they are both commonly called peptic ulcer.

An ulcer starts as a small defect in the lining of the stomach, or mucous membrane, and becomes deeper and larger around as it develops. Eventually it may become deep enough to reach the tiny nerve endings which carry pain sensations to the brain.

Consequently, at the beginning an ulcer rarely produces symptoms and it is not until it has become fairly deep that one actually becomes aware of something being wrong.

WHAT CAUSES peptic ulcer is only partly known. There are some reasons for believing that the strain of modern life has increased the number of victims of peptic ulcer and has at least something to do with their development.

While this theory cannot be considered entirely proved it certainly seems reasonable to believe that the rapid pace of modern life, with the wear and tear on the nervous system of high speed automobiles, noise and all the rest, would exert some kind of effect on the bodily functions which might be shown in an increased tendency toward stomach ulcers.

But it is certain that people with ulcers of the stomach who are getting along well may become much worse following an especially tiring or irritating business conference or an emotional shock such as is brought about by a disaster in the family.

This often happens even while the person is continuing a treatment which has relieved symptoms for a long time.

ALL THE MEDICAL treatments for ulcer have the common purpose of relieving the irritation on its surface, that is, in the stomach or duodenum, so that the ulcer has a chance to heal.

The most irritating substance which comes in contact with the ulcer is the hydrochloric acid manufactured in the stomach itself.

Frequent feedings, the giving of alkaline powders and other preparations are all aimed at reducing this irritating effect of the hydrochloric acid.

There does not appear to be any single treatment that is "best" for everyone. Several surgical procedures are also useful in certain varieties or stages of peptic ulcer.

THERE ARE TWO particularly serious complications of ulcer. When an ulcer eats across a small blood vessel, bleeding takes place. Sometimes this is low and the blood merely passes down the intestinal tract.

At other times the bleeding may be rapid, fill the stomach and cause vomiting. In either case bleeding is a sign requiring prompt attention.

The other complication is perforation — the ulcer eats entirely through the wall of the stomach and makes a hole into the abdominal cavity. This may result in peritonitis and immediate surgery is in order.

DANGER AHEAD!

Beautiful, yes. Beautiful as only Nature in all her purity can be. But dangerous too; dangerous to the ships at sea and the men they carry. For an iceberg's greatest bulk lies unseen beneath the surface . . . and against it, the unwary cannot survive.

Many of the things which, on the surface, appear the most tempting and beautiful contain hidden dangers and unsuspected pitfalls.

Men, like ships, need warning and guidance — and nowhere can they find greater help, greater love and protection than in their Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

No Penalty For Highway Planning

The argument that Ohio is making to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads for advancing federal road-building funds as fast as they can be put to work, instead of penalizing Ohio for being ahead of some of the other 47 states in its highway planning, is sound.

Ohio is not asking for any increase in its total share of federal highway funds, only for a chance to draw its share as rapidly as it can get interstate highway projects under way.

Unless it can do this, it will be forced to pay a penalty for its promptness in getting road projects to the construction stage. The penalty would be the necessity of drawing money from its own funds to keep the federal program moving and replacing the money later when federal funds become available.

Keep This Fact Straight

Everything within the power of publicity will be done to make it appear that the eight defendants on trial in Federal Court in Cleveland on the charge of conspiring to circumvent the non-Communist affidavit section of the Labor-Management Act are martyrs of organized labor.

The Committee for Taft-Hartley Defendants has sent out statements containing this statement: A new offensive against the American labor movement is under way... The main weapon is the Taft-Hartley Act... Step by step, labor is being exposed to the full fury of this diabolical law... And not least of these steps are the recent Taft-Hartley conspiracy indictments.

This is a false presentation of an issue that will be prominent in the news as the Cleveland trial proceeds. The non-Communist affidavits required under the Labor-Management (Taft-Hartley) Act are for organized labor's protection against Communists posing as labor leaders. If the affidavits had been checked on more closely during the years

In the meantime, Ohio's state-road program would be slowed down for lack of money.

Sooner or later, the Bureau of Public Roads will have to set a policy about this; Ohio is not the only state that will be ready for more federal funds before some of the slow-poke states are ready to use their allotments.

It is not a question of penalizing them for being slow. It is entirely a question of whether or not a state should be penalized for moving promptly. During the 10-year program of road-building approved by Congress in 1956, the Bureau of Public Roads will have many occasions to juggle its bookkeeping to put federal funds at work in places where the are needed, instead of impounding them for future use in places where construction has been delayed for one reason or another.

when many unions were betrayed from within by Communists, the infiltration that finally caused CIO to clean its own house could not have occurred.

The federal government is moving belatedly against some of the people who took advantage of tardiness in checking up on the non-Communist affidavits that were required before labor leaders could use the services of the National Labor Relations Board. The prosecution in Cleveland is part of the government effort to protect genuine unionism from the bogus unionism that masks service to the Communist conspiracy.

The only issue in the case is whether or not the defendants conspired to circumvent a federal law by saying they were not members of the Communist party or affiliated with it when in fact they were. There is no question of an attack on bona fide unionism. In view of unionism's own commendable efforts to rid its organizations of bogus leadership, the case reflects the federal government's determination to help unionists protect themselves against political subversion.

Money In Colors

In a one-man campaign to save the $2 bill from going the way of the dudloon, a Floridian by the name of Emilian T. Boyko has written the U.S. Treasury Department a warning that all people consider the $2 bill hard luck and as a result it is dying of a sickness — the dislike of the people.

But Mr. Boyko said a new model $2 bill would be a "sure fire success in color." Electric blue, maybe. He also put in a plug for adding a flashily colored $3 bill to the Treasury's line of goods or possibly abolishing the $2 bill entirely and turning out a $2½ number.

All Mr. Boyko wanted was full credit for the idea, saying it was submitted as a patriotic deed. While the Treasury Department acknowledged the idea has merit and would save hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, at one cent a bill in the cost of printing, it took a dim view of the plan. Director Henry J. Holtzclaw of the Bureau of Engraving said that getting the public used to identifying bills by color would be an invitation to counterfeiters.

It's been so long since most of us has seen a $2 bill that we thought that they had gone out of circulation. But as one astute observer remarked, we wouldn't care what color money came in if only it came in faster.

Let's Straighten It Out!

Science in Education

By RAYMOND MOLEY

From present indications, the administration's plan for federal aid to education must compete with a flood of bills aimed at the same general purpose. According to one competent reporter more than 350 of the mass of bills pending before Congress deal in some way with education.

Of these, about 80 major measures are pending in the House, and 22 in the Senate. Many of these deal with federal aid for school construction, a lost cause this year. Others deal with many forms of scholarship gifts and loans.

The administration's plan has a number of strange detours toward the immediate problem of getting more science into the curriculum. A considerable part of the billion-dollar, four-year plan is for various forms of counseling for students and teachers.

Presumably this would take the form of encouraging students with special aptitudes to go further into scientific subjects and end up as scientists and engineers.

Perhaps this would be a useful adjunct to schooling for students who must now flounder amid the potpourri offered by the schools.

The National Education Association is contemptuous of the administration's plan. The NEA executive secretary, William G. Carr, says that "a drop in the bucket" is hardly the right way to characterize the administration's plan. "But it doesn't fill the bucket."

The idea of a bucket of money as the proper means of meeting educational needs comes with poor grace from professional educators—shall I say "educationalists"?—who have permitted their courses of study to wander farther and farther from basic training in the fundamentals.

These educators have built up so many palatable substitutes for specific courses in exact disciplines that the result is a scattering of information imposed upon minds unfitted for hard work and clear reasoning.

Consider, for example, turning out high-school graduates whose only mathematical training has been in a smattering course in which arithmetic, algebra, and geometry are mixed.

Another example is in what happened to the old courses in "civil government," in which the Constitution was taught section by section and amendment by amendment, as well as the framework of the government in which the students were living.

The educationists considered this "too dry," and there emerged a conglomeration called "social science" or "community civics." This consisted of discussions concerning housing conditions, the nourishment of babies, and public comfort stations, together with visits to local jails and almshouses—or "welfare homes"—and the city water works where there was one, etc.

In college the influence of Durand's popularization of philosophy and of Wells' "Outline of History" led to courses on "civilization," in which several subjects were jumbled in a hash of generalities.

"General science," another jumble, vied with "appreciation" courses in music and art. Vocational dabs were popular, and recreation was not neglected because there were courses in tap dancing and the like.

Several buckets of money will not improve this besorged trivia. Nor will Federal aid for school construction be logical as long as the educators use the plant they have on a part-time basis. Nor will federal aid in raising salaries be worth-while as long as teaching is a part-year job. Instead of crying out for more money, educators might well turn some criticism upon their own handiwork.

One of the more worthy proposals before Congress is to offer loans for college students instead of free scholarships and to provide government insurance for the loans. This would help any worthy student, provide a reminder that he should ultimately pay for his education, and also save some federal money.

But money alone will not supply what is needed. School administrators, teachers, parents, and school-board members must put their schoolhouses in order.

Message of Hope

President Aimed Speech at All Peoples of World

President Eisenhower delivered on Thursday perhaps the greatest state paper of modern times. It was not just a "State of the Union" message.

It was a message on the "state of the world." It was not addressed just to people but to all the peoples of the world.

Far beyond its appraisal of domestic problems and the special issues that face America, Mr. Eisenhower made his first dramatic appeal to the people of the Soviet Union. Just as President Wilson in 1917 appealed to the German people above the autocratic government in Berlin, President Eisenhower appeals over the heads of the Communist government in Moscow to the people themselves in Soviet Russia.

This passage in his address will be of transcendent significance in winning the hearts and minds of people around the globe:

"My call for action is not primarily addressed to the Congress and people of the United States. Rather, it is a message from the people of the United States to all other peoples, especially those of the Soviet Union. This is the spirit of what we would like to say:

"In the last analysis there is only one solution to the grim problems that lie ahead. The world must stop the present plunge toward more and more destructive weapons of war and turn the corner that will start our steps firmly on the path toward lasting peace.

"Our greatest hope for success lies in a universal fact: The people of the world, as people, have always wanted peace and want peace now.

"The problem, then, is to find a way of translating this universal desire into action. This will require more than words of peace. It requires works of peace."

HERE IN REALITY was an appeal for a different kind of "summit conference." It means more contact with peoples, not with dictators who have broken faith with everybody, including their own people.

The President outlined various means of cooperation in "works of peace" and, as a beginning, suggested cooperation in research projects in the field of cancer and heart disease.

He recommended broad cultural and scientific programs, too, and showed clearly that America wants to extend the hand of friendship to the Soviet people.

Small wonder that leaders of both political parties here praised the address. For in it was a statement of American idealism which reflects the heart and mind of the American people today.

It was just the kind of address needed in the present crisis. There are, of course, some flaw-pickers who want every detail spelled out or who fear their special projects for legislation may have to be postponed to get the money needed to finance missiles and new weapons.

There was in the President's speech a balanced emphasis on military matters—a careful exposition of how firmly the United States stands today well prepared against any possible attack and of how strong America expects to be in "deterrent power" in the not-far-distant future. But basically the keynote was confidence and reassurance.

ON THE DOMESTIC situation, with a business decline going on that has increased unemployment, the President was forthright and outspoken. He said:

"There are solid grounds for confidence that economic growth will be resumed without an extended interruption. Moreover, the federal government, constantly alert to signs of weakening in any part of our economy, always stands ready, with its full power, to take any appropriate further action to promote renewed business expansion."

The key words were "economic growth" and "business expansion," and this was just the note that the business world had hoped would be expressed by the President.

Mr. Eisenhower chose in the main an implicit rather than an explicit style of expression. He said he would give details in subsequent messages. But in this address he gave the spirit of the administration's whole approach to the challenges of the "Sputnik era."

Controversies there will be on mutual aid, tariffs, and the size of the appropriations for defense and nondefense items. But it is significant that the speech was interrupted by applause at least 35 times, and many of the outbursts were prolonged.

The President looked healthy and spoke with his accustomed ease. It seems incredible that only a few weeks ago impulsive-minded politicians were calling on him to "resign."

MR. EISENHOWER opened the door to the making of peace in the world. He pleaded for disarmament and promised that "we, as a nation, will always go the extra mile with anyone on earth if it will bring us nearer a genuine peace."

Mr. Eisenhower reviewed particularly the past efforts at disarmament negotiations and challenged the Soviets to resume the parleys which they have up to now refused to reopen. So far as the United States is concerned, it was revealed to the world as a nation ready to spend whatever is necessary to be strong militarily to resist attack but also as a nation ready to agree to a disarmament plan the moment "a reliable means to ensure compliance by all" can be found.

Why Gaither Secrecy?

By DAVID BARNETT

The Gaither committee reportedly put out 200 copies of its secret report on the state of U.S. defenses, much to the annoyance of the administration.

The stated purpose was to make sure the report became available to all federal administrators who "needed to know." Obviously, some members of the committee anticipated that any report reproduced in such quantity had a good chance to "leak" to the public.

Actually, no "hard" leaks have happened. There have been accounts of the report—all of which contained some inaccuracies—but not direct quotes from the document.

What makes the administration so reluctant to release the document is this:

The basic information in the report has been available to defense leaders for some time. The staff work for the committee was done by the Institute for Defense Analysis, a corporation set up cooperatively by some of the country's greatest universities to help the Joint Chiefs of Staff evaluate weapons systems.

The institut eworks under a contract with the JCS on the same type of evaluation it made for the Gaither group. Thus the only new part of the report is the body of conclusions and recommendations.

Many administration leaders and some top scientists agree that such conclusions should be made by officials who are responsible to the voters.

Release of the committee's recommendations, which obviously in some aspects differ from those of the elected officials, would make it more difficult politically for the administration to follow the course it considers right.

The custom of men tipping their hats comes from the fact that a warrior, when entering a house, removed his helmet and extended his hand. By removing the helmet, he expressed confidence in his host. By extending his hand he showed he was not concealing any weapons, such as a knife.

Shippingport Atomic Power Plant In Operation

through the Shippingport reactor and is heated up to 535 degrees (water boils at 212) and kept under 2,000 pounds-per-square-inch pressure.

THE HEATED WATER flows through boiler-type exchangers where a secondary water supply absorbs the heat, boils and creates steam which turns the turbine which runs the generator.

The Shippingport plant's "heart"—the nuclear core of the pressurized water reactor—contains the nuclear fuel, 165 pounds of highly enriched uranium "seed" and 14 tons of natural uranium.

When the metallic control rods are raised slowly, atoms in the uranium begin splitting in an orderly and controlled fission. The heat generated by the fissioning is equivalent to about 300,000 tons of coal.

If the reactor becomes too hot, the control rods are lowered a bit to "cool off" the fission. Thus the rods are handled like a thermostat to keep the required temperatures constant.

THE FUEL SUPPLY is expected to last between one and three years. Engineers already realize the fuel charge, which now can provide electricity to supply the residential needs of a city of 250,000, is not sufficient to be compatible with the 100,000-kilowatt rating of the turbine generator.

But the reactor vessel and the primary coolant system have been designed to accommodate cores considerably larger so the information obtained from the operation and test of the first core can be utilized.

Because of flexibility in design, the core can be rearranged and the number of control rods changed to take advantage of knowledge gained.

The reactor vessel is located in the fuel handling building, largest on the site. The building is 44 feet wide, 182 feet long and 60 ft high. It is equipped with a 100-ton manipulator crane to remove or remove or rearrange any fuel assemblies, either through fuel ports in the head of the vessel or with the head removed.

Te fuel "canal" will be flooded with water during the removal operation and the assemblies moved under water to a section of the canal for storage, disassembly, repair or examination.

Although the operation sounds simple, engineers were faced with constructing a "furnace" of a type that never before had been built.

As Mr. Oldham points out, the plant couldn't use "off-the-shelf" equipment, partly because of its immensity, partly because some metals little known as to engineering properties were being used, and the need for every item to be perfect.

THE BIGGEST PROBLEM encountered was to obtain the equipment within the time limit and still meet the exacting specifications demanded by Duquesne and the AEC. Another problem was that the design never was ahead of construction. And, finally, there was the lack of an over-all boss. With Duquesne and the AEC working as "partners," both had to be certain there was no conflict in what each was doing.

The high cost of the plant—about 2½ times more than the original estimate of 47 million dollars—isn't too alarming when it's realized that Shippingport will be more important for the information it returns than the power it produces.

As one example, different manufacturers were given contracts to install pumps so the design, manufacture and operation of each can be studied.

Because of a lack of basic knowledge on pressurized water reactors, costly safety features were installed to protect the surrounding tri-state area from any chance of deadly radiation. The safety features will be evaluated during the plant's operation and possibly removed as other plants are built.

The entire nuclear portion of the plant is housed in four steel containers partially below ground and encased in 5-foot-thick concrete compartments.

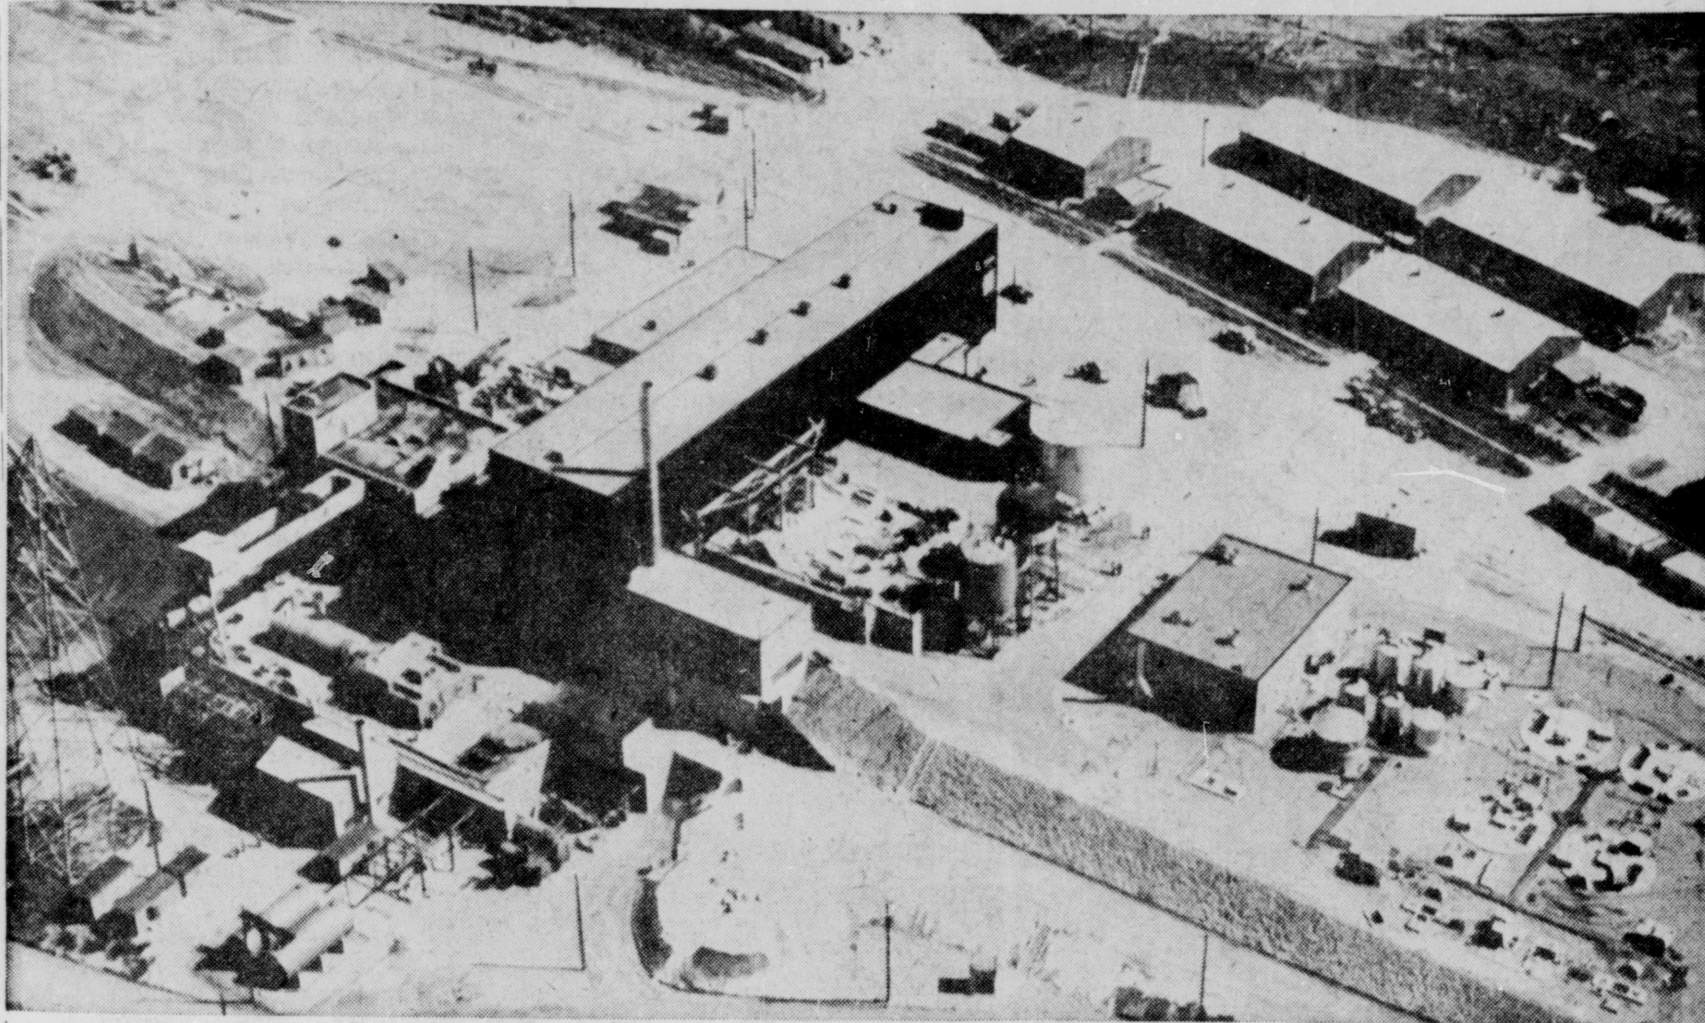

Some 56,000 cubic yards of concrete and 11,200,000 pounds of reinforcing steel were used in construction of the plant, which averages out to about 200 pounds of reinforcing steel for each cubic yard of concrete—about three times as much as would be used in a normal power plant.

THE REACTOR VESSEL is in a spherical shell 38 feet in diameter with an over-all height of 33 feet. Inside the vessel, the core assemblies are enclosed in a stainless steel cage nearly 8 feet in outside diameter and slightly more than 13 feet high.

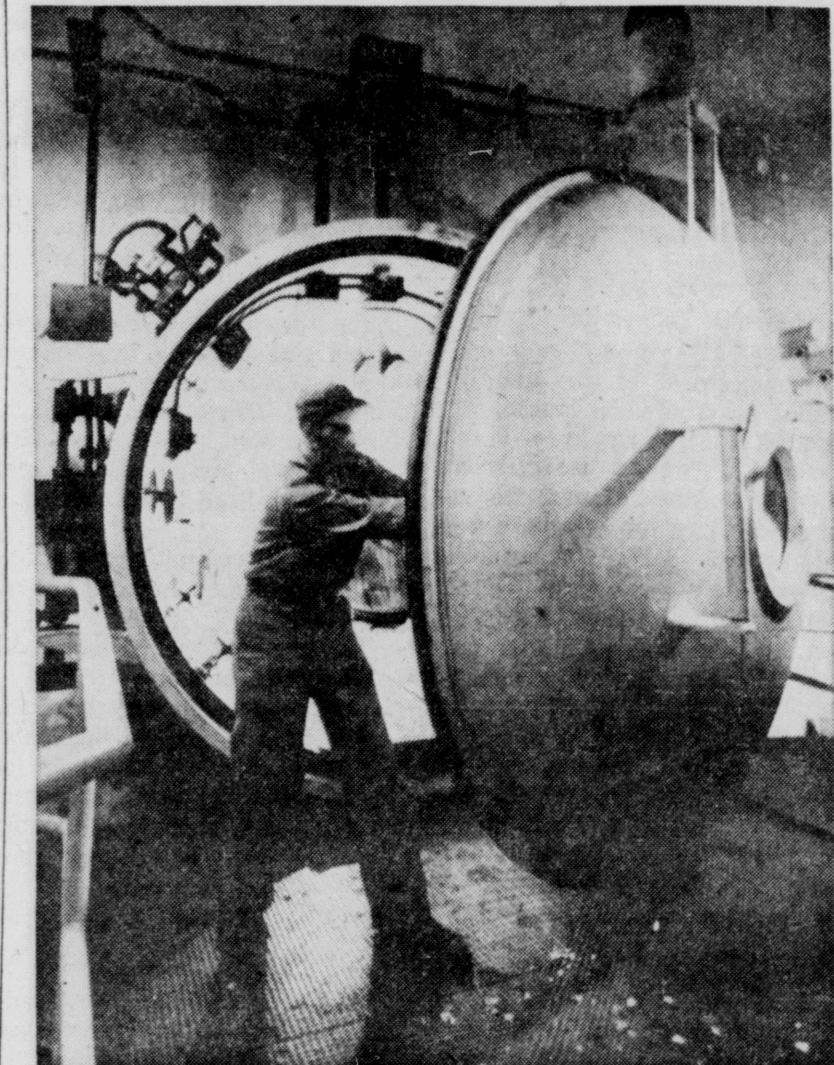

Located on each side of the reactor vessel are cylinders 50 feet in diameter and 97 feet long. An auxiliary container 50-147 feet is located between the nuclear equipment and the turbine generator.

The containers are designed to prevent the escape of any radioactive gases or vapor containing fission products that may accidentally be released as the result of a major accident.

Operating personnel will wear "film" badges, which will be processed weekly to determine the amount of radiation to which each man has been exposed, if any. Radiation-monitoring equipment is provided to determine the existing radiation levels and warn the personnel of any unusual conditions.

THE VAST PLANT which produces atomic power at Shippingport is shown in this aerial photo. The plant, built private capital in cooperation with the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is operated by the Duquesne Light Co. in an Ohio River community nine miles east of East Liverpool. It cost 110 million dollars.

"PORTHOLE TO ATOMIC POWER" is this two-ton door which, swung shut, seals off the auxiliary chamber of the Shippingport plant from the rest of the facility. Inside the chamber is a large portion of some 100,000 feet of piping that is necessary to transfer energy from a nuclear chain reaction to the turbine-generator that produces electricity.

IF A FILM badge shows one of the rare cases of radiation exposure that crop up now and then, the effected employee is laid off for awhile or assigned to another job so his body can toss off the radiation effects.

An individual is not conscious of any radiation effects in the early stages—thus the film warning safeguard.

One of the major problems in operating a nuclear power plant is the difficulty in determining exactly what is taking place inside the reactor vessel. Dozens of instruments have been installed to make the determinations.

The nuclear portion of the plant was designed by the atomic power division of Westinghouse Electric Co. under contract with the AEC. Ground breaking for the plant was held Labor Day 1954, when President Eisenhower, then in Denver, waved an electronic wand to trigger a power shovel into operation.

THE NUCLEAR CORE was lowered into position last Oct. 5, and at 4:30 a.m. Dec. 2—just 15 years after the late scientist Enrico Fermi achieved the first self-sustaining nuclear fission at the University of Chicago—the plant went "critical."

"Criticality" is the point at which nuclear fission becomes self-sustaining.

On Dec. 18 the plant fed its first electricity into the Duquesne system, and by Dec. 23 was producing 68,000 kilowatts with 8,000 re-served to supply its own needs.

The elaborate testing program will continue as part of the regular function of the plant.

SOME 130 PERSONS will be employed at the plant—more than the usual number—for three reasons:

1. It provides good training for engineers.

2. A large group is needed to carry out the tests the AEC may request.

3. A group of health physicists checks the personnel periodically to determine the amount of radiation each can be exposed to.

Even as Shippingport entered the news, the AEC received a proposal from another Pennsylvania utility for construction of an atomic power plant that would be the first of its type in the United States.

In the proposed plant, fuel and coolant material would be mixed homogeneously with both thorium and uranium used as fuels. New problems of remote maintenance would be required, but the type has important advantages because of a potentially low fuel cost, the AEC said.

AND THE scientific world is agog with the unconfirmed report, hailed as "the greatest scientific discovery of all time," that British scientists have made progress in harnessing the hydrogen power of the H-bomb.

Perhaps Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, navy scientist credited with developing America's atomic submarine program and prominent in the construction of the Shippingport plant, summed it up best in a speech in 1956:

"Today, for the first time, because we have unlocked the energy of the atom, man holds in his hands the power to change his environment. Up to now, he has been able to accommodate himself to nature but not to change it."

"This power to modify his environment on a scale which can affect all humanity imposes on man a great political and moral responsibility. In attempting to do God's work, God help us if we do not do it wisely."

FBI Agents Nab Prison Escape Artist

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Joseph Kostal, prison escape artist who made his last break from a Colorado jail while awaiting trial on a murder charge, was captured by FBI agents Friday night at a subway entrance near Times Square.

Kostal, 37, had been the object of a nationwide manhunt since last Nov. 21 when, with a companion, he broke out of Jefferson County Jail in Golden, Colo., near Denver.

He flashed a make-believe gun made from soap at guards and fled the jail with Arthur Watson, 30, who was being held in the slaying of a special deputy sheriff.

Kostal and Watson fled in a stolen car, but cracked up the car in Denver and then separated. Watson gave himself up.

Kostal forced his way into the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Reed, shaved, drank two pots of coffee and dressed in clothes taken from the apartment. Then he forced Reed to drive him around Denver in search of a car to steal before he jumped out in the downtown area and disappeared.

Dancer Testifies Against Convicted Ohio Murderer, 42

NEW YORK (AP)—A 19-year-old dancer has testified that she saw Leroy Keith, 42-year-old convicted Ohio murderer, fire three times at a cab driver and kill him.

Betty Jean Ward said Friday that Keith fired at cab driver David Suro when Suro ignored a command to turn the wrong way down a one-way street.

Another woman, Dorothy Chaney, 24, also testified Friday that she saw Keith shoot Suro. Keith is being tried for first degree murder.

Both women originally were indicted as accomplices in the slaying. The indictment later was dismissed and they are being held in $50,000 bail as material witnesses.

Miss Chaney said she and Miss Ward had spent the previous evening with Keith and were "forced" to accompany him on a planned robbery of a Bronx chain store.

Another of Keith's companions in the cab, James Morris, 22, also had been indicted as an accomplice and was held in $50,000 bail as a material witness when the indictment was dismissed.

All in Keith's party were negroes.

Both women testified the robbery was to gain funds for a trip to Florida. They said Keith who was convicted of murder in Akron, Ohio, in 1934, threatened to kill them if they did not accompany him.

Suro, 49, of Jersey City N. J., was slain just before Christmas, 1956.

Ohio authorities want Keith for a slaying committed since he was paroled last March after serving time on the 1934 conviction.

mediate range ballistic missiles. He indicated he thought greater missile strength could be achieved sooner by "concentrating on the Thor."

The general also said the Air Force could immediately undertake several space projects by modifying the Thor. He said these included putting a satellite into orbit and making unmanned reconnaissance trips to the Moon, Mars and Venus "at a relatively early date."

So far, the Air Force has had no role in this country's effort to launch an earth satellite.

Plans Disclosed by McElroy

Last Dec. 13, Secretary of Defense McElroy disclosed plans for the new space agency. He said the ARPA would operate under a single manager and would not be controlled by any one service.

The Air Force then announced establishment of its own directorate of astronautics. That plan immediately was canceled at the direction of the defense department, which called the Air Force action premature.

Earlier in the week, the preparedness subcommittee had heard two other generals voice strong criticism of defense policies.

Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of Army research and development, said he is retiring March 31 because he contended the Army is deteriorating rapidly and "I can't get anything done about it."

He said that for the past four years Army strength and appropriations have been whittled down.

Levels Attack at Ike

And Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, told the subcommittee Eisenhower had not asked enough money for a planned stepup in work on 5,000-mile range intercontinental ballistic missiles.

In separate interviews, Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass), Stennis (D-Miss) and Kefauver (D-Tenn) praised Schriever for giving what they considered to be a candid expression of his views.

Stennis said Schriever's testimony was "not critical, just frank." He added he thought it "rather odd" that the Pentagon released the testimony, but he would not speculate on the reasons.

Kefauver said "Gen. Schriever was just doing what was good for the country—expressing his individual opinion...there are serious disagreements and I think it is good to air them."

Saltonstall did not go into differences with the defense program expressed by Schriever, but he said he thought it "makes good sense" to place ultimate operation of space weapons in the hands of the Air Force.

in diameter, weighing 29.7 pounds. It will be the final stage of the Army's Jupiter-C missile.

Persons close to the programs expect the Vanguard attempt to come possibly next week and that of the Jupiter-C a week or so later.

A Vanguard launching attempt failed Dec. 6. The Army has not yet tried to put up a satellite.

Project Vanguard officials were roundly criticized for the publicity on their Dec. 6 launching attempt. They have sent out orders that no information on the program be released here, and that all queries be referred to headquarters in Washington.

Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yats, commander of the test center, even went so far as to discontinue hoisting aloft on two 90-foot poles on the cape the red balls or flashing lights that have warned boats within five miles of the cape that dry runs—training exercises—static engine tests—or actual launches are under way.

SUFFERS MOUTH INJURY

Ronald Lee Brubaker, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brubaker of 158 7th St., Columbiana, is in fairly good condition in Salem City Hospital, where he was admitted for treatment Friday at 6:45 p.m. The child fell on a wooden object and punctured the roof of his mouth.

New Beep-Beep Signals Traced To Red Teleprinter

LONDON (AP)—The beep-beep was heard over Europe and in Ohio today, but the Swedish government said it was caused by an idling Russian teleprinter, not by a new Soviet Sputnik.

The views of the Swedish government's radio monitors coincided with those of the British Broadcasting Corp. BBC earlier had said the beep actually might be a teleprinter idling.

A spokesman for Sweden's Enkoping station said the beep-beep was heard at 20,025 megacycles on the Sputnik wavelength for hours but was traced to a "typical Russian frequency shift teleprinter transmitter."

He said the printer was now sending clear text in Russian after being idle for about three hours. The teleprinter is a device that transmits news and messages by radio signal. There was no explanation of why the signal was heard over such a wide area.

"It sounded quite like a Sputnik at the start," the Swedish spokesman said.

Reports also came from West Germany, Finland and Norway. All the monitors said the sounds were on or around the Sputnik wavelength.

After working for several hours with monitoring and direction-finding equipment, a senior BBC engineer suggested the signal might have been transmitted by an idling teleprinter.

In the United States, ham operator Francis Strait of Columbus, familiar beep-beep-beep" near the 20-megacycle band from 4:10 to 4:15 a.m. London time is five hours ahead of Ohio.

After that the signal grew weaker but seemed to hold a steady note, Strait reported.

Sputnik II has not been heard for several weeks and its radio power apparently has failed. Sputnik I is presumed to have fallen from its orbit.

These are some Twenty Mule wagons used to haul borax out of Death Valley.

AN ITEM in the news recently about some vandalism in Death Valley recalls one of the most publicized modes of transportation during the days of the pioneer — the famed Twenty Mule Teams. Vandals recently hauled away iron vats and smoke stack of the Eagle Borax works, one of the famous landmarks in Death Valley National Monument. Set up in 1880, it was Southern California's first borax works. The Harmony Borax Works (later Pacific Coast Borax) was then launched and with it the well-known Twenty Mule Teams. In 1887, importations of borax from abroad brought the price so low the works closed down, although the insignia of the Twenty Mule still carried on. Those vandals, however, have destroyed a piece of the past.

Salem Rolls Over Warren 63-53 For 6th Straight Victory

Meissner, Pauline Score 39 Points To Pace Local Attack

By GORDON ARNDT
The Salem High Quakers racked up their sixth straight cage win of the season last night on the home floor when they defeated the Warren Harding Panthers 63-53.

The uaker offensive was paced by 20 points from Jim Meissner and 19 by Bill Pauline. Moe hit most of his markers on set shots while Salem's 6-5 center canned most of his fielders on put shots from the ide and jumps from the key hole.

Warren's attack was led by 16 points each from the shooting of Joe Hill and Jim Butler. The defeat was the Panthers eighth in 11 starts.

For the first 12 minutes of the game Salem appeared to be on the verge of an easy triumph. With over five minutes left in the second frame, they held a 29-15 edge.

However, the locals did an "en foido" in the last five minutes and left the floor at the intermission with only a two-point margin, 29-27.

Warren pocketed a dozen points in that span while the Red and Black failed to notch a fielder or charity toss.

IN THE SECOND HALF, the Quakers regained the touch they had in the early stages of the tilt and began rebuilding their edge but not before Warren had taken the lead on three occasions in the third canto.

The Panthers took the lead for the first time in the contest at 31-30 with 6:55 left in the next-to-last quarter. They held the upper hand for the last time at 36-35 with 3:56 remaining in the same period.

Salem took the lead for keeps in this canto when Dan Krichbaum scored with 1:58 left to give the locals a 41-39 margin. From then on in the Quakers were never headed. They led 45-39 at the end of the quarter and in the final stanza with 0:47 left, had built their lead back up to 13 points at 61-48. Warren played but six men all night and even when 13 points behind in the waning minutes, continued to play a zone defense rather than press with close man-to-man defensive tactics.

THE PANTHERS WERE cold in the early minutes of the opening frame and were guilty of such common violations as steps and being caught in the three-second lane.

Salem took advantage of the errors to lead 19-11 at the end of the initial eight minutes. Salem's cause was helped here particularly on Pauline's jump shots from the key after being fed by the clever and agile Butch Platt.

Salem played a fast breaking game in the second period and hauled in most of the defensive rebounds to boot. The Quakers scored effectively when they came down the court and set up plays.

They began to get reckless with but a little over five minutes to go in the first half and the visitors from Trumbull County took advantage of it.

THE QUAKERS WERE guilty of being slow on getting back on the defensive, and often times would come down and fire a long one from the outside rather than attempt to work the oval in closer to their opponent's nets.

Salem suffered additionally from their old nemesis, the offensive rebound, in these stages. Warren would grab the ball and come down the floor and score.

The half ended with Warren scoring 12 straight points to cut Salem's lead from 29-15 to 29-27.

In the first few minutes of the second half, the teams played on nip and tuck terms, with the lead changing hands six times.

Salem then broke on top to stay at 41-39 with 1:58 left in the quarter following Krichbaum's shot.

During that frame, the Red and Black played a more deliberate style of offense and it paid off with a 45-39 lead after three full periods.

LOU SLABY HELPED the locals' cause in the last seconds of this quarter by grabbing off important rebounds. Warren all the while stayed in a 1-2-2 zone defense.

The Quakers' style increased their advantage that much more with about six minutes left in the game as they led at that time 61-49.

The Panthers then amassed a quintet of points in succession to cut the deficit to 51-44. But with 3:30 left, Salem was ahead by 11 at 57-46 following scoring efforts by Krichbaum and Platt.

The Quakers were hurt in the last period somewhat by losing the ball on bad passes into the key hole.

Salem led 61-48 or by 13 points with 0:47 left. It was the first time since five minutes remained in the second frame that they led by that many points.

Warren slashed the lead to nine markers, 61-52, but time had run out on them.

Salem made 28 of 68 shots for a good 41 per cent. They hit on 7 of 16 foul shots while Warren canned 13 of 23 fouls.

Tonight the Quakers will travel to Ravenna to meet a team that has a 3-5 record. The JV tilt will begin at 7 p.m.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Michigan baseball coach Ray Fisher will retire at the end of next season after guiding the Wolverines' baseball fortunes since 1921. He reached the mandatory retirement age of 70 last October.

Pauline finished the game with 19 points. Players shown from Warren include Dave Tuttle, No. 45, and Bob Smith, No. 21. Salem plays at Ravenna tonight.

Muskingum Posts 82-69 Win Over Western Reserve Five

By The Associated Press
It was "rally" night for three Ohio basketball teams that ignored halftime deficit and came from behind to win Friday night. Muskingum was behind Western Reserve 34-30 at intermission but went on to win its sixth victory in eight starts, 82-69. Reserve led until the final 13 minutes and then fell victim to the Muskies' fast breaks.

It was the same story at Grandville where enison led 39-36 at the half. With 11 minutes remaining, Marietta went ahead 54-53 and stayed there as the Pioneers won their Ohio Conference opener, 88-79.

In a close-fought Mid-American Conference battle, Ohio University left the court losing 31-28 at halftime, then stormed back in the second half to beat Kent State 58-54. It was the Bobcats' sixth win in 10 outings. OU and Kent are 1-1 in the conference.

Elsewhere on the cage scene, Ohio colleges came out on the losing end in three of five inter-state contests played.

Frostburg (Md.) State Teachers capitalized on its height advantage and 30 - point scoring of Dave Marple to defeat Shland on its home court, 84-65.

At Oakland City, Ind., Rio Grande of Ohio was sparked by the 28-point production of Carl Large. But Oakland City College won anyway, 78-72.

Central State gave Pikeville, Ky., College a nip-and-tuck last half battle, but the Kentuckians won in the end, 91-88, for their 12th victory in 19 starts. Central State is now 2-4.

Ohio's only inter - state wins were Baldwin-Wallace 88-74 victory over Buffalo State, and Steubenville's 94-62 triumph over Alliance, Pa. The Buffalonians' only consolation was in individual scoring honors—29 points by Buffalo State's Joe Merlo.

Other loop tilts in the state saw Wooster easily trounce Hiram, 98-59, after holding a 63-28 halftime lead. Hiram is winless in six games, including three in the Ohio Conference in which Wooster stands 1-1.

In the Mid-Ohio League contest, Jake Harner and Carlos Hamilton scored 26 points apiece as the Wilmington Quakers won their sixth straight ball game, 96-81 over Ohio Northern.

LOWELLVILLE DROPS Western Reserve
Gene Slaven netted 15 points to pace Lowellville to a 53-43 cage victory over Western Reserve Friday night in a game played at Berlin Center.

The defeat gave Western Reserve a 5-6 record for the season.

Western Reserve started out strong, holding a 15-10 first quarter lead. The score at the intermission was 25-22 in favor of Western Reserve, but Lowellville tied the count 35 all in the third quarter.

Jim Larkins scored 13 points to pace Western Reserve. He was followed by Don Schaeffer who tallied 10 markers.

Western Reserve's Jayvees won the preliminary contest 39-36 in overtime play.

Western Reserve's next contest will be at home Friday against North Lima.

Bob Rosburg Retains Golf Tourney Lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Capable Bob Rosburg threatened to make a runaway with the $50,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament today as he passed the halfway point in the 72-hole event with a five-stroke lead.

The chunky putting expert Friday added a 5-under-par 67 over the tough and tricky Cypress Point course to the 65 he had at Monterey Peninsula Country Club on opening day for a 132 total.

Putts by the 31-year-old Rosburg, a Stanford gray now playing from Napa, Calif., dropped from distances of 20, 18 and twice from 15 feet.

His 67 wasn't quite the best round of the day, though, as Bill Casper Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif., fired a 66 at Monterey for a two-day total of 137 and second place.

Tempestuous Tommy Bolt, who remained calm despite windy and sometimes rainy weather, held third place with a 71-67—138 as a field of 140 began the final two rounds over a third course—Pebble Beach—in this 72-hole tournament.

Veteran E. J. (Dutch) Harrison made it clear that he, for one, didn't consider Rosburg any cinch for the title and the $4,000 top prize. Harrison, eight strokes off the pace at 140, said, "Here anything can happen. You're not in until you finish that last hole."

Defending champion Jay Hebert, at 141, echoed his sentiments.

Crosby set up his rapidly expanding tournament with two categories—individual pros and pro-amateur best ball.

Rosburg and his partner, San Francisco golf writer Nelson Cullenward, shared the lead in the latter with Bolt and movie Tarzan Johnny Weissmuller. Both had 61-65—126, the scores including the amateurs' handicaps.

Among the pros, fourth place was shared by youthful Dave Marr of Mamaroneck, N.Y., with 69-70—139 and veteran Chick Harbert of Northville, Mich., former Ryder Cup captain, with 71-68.

Seven tied at 140 were Canadian Al Baiding, Harrison, Walter Burkemo, Dow Finsterwald, Bob Harris, Bo Wininger, and Jack Burke Jr.

A vice president is not allowed to vote on measures before the Senate except in case of a tie, because to do so would disturb the principle of state equality. If he were given his right, his home state would have three votes as against two for the other states, because each state is represented by two senators.

THE JONKER

In 1933 a worker and his native helper in a diamond mine in South Africa stumbled upon a muddy lump of stone lying in alluvial sand outside the mine. It proved to be a profitable discovery. Upon examination, it was found to be one of the finest precious stones in existence, second in size to the Cullinan. Since the prospector's name was Jacobus Jonker, the jewel has been named "The Jonker." It was found to weigh in the rough, 726 carats, and was valued at $315,000, thus making Jonker a wealthy man. A LOOK at its later history shows that, after deciding to cut the stone, the owners tried to insure it for one million dollars, but the risk of incorrect cleavage was considered too great. The task was given to an expert who spent months studying the stone before finally cutting it successfully. Then for a year the pieces had to be sawed, faceted and polished before becoming twelve perfect diamonds, the largest weighing approximately 143 carats. The entire stone was considered to be the very finest blue-white color, and the total value of the twelve finished stones was two million dollars. And all this because an old man stopped to inspect a rock in his path.
